CENTENNIAL

HISTORY OF TUALATIN ACADEMY AND PACIFIC UNIVERSITY.

OFFICE OF SUP'T OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION,
SALEM, Oregon, Jan 2[illegible] 18[illegible]

Prof G. H Collier, A M, Rev [illegible] and Rev G H Atkinson, D D, [illegible] Grove Oregon—GENTLEMEN: You are hereby appointed a committee to prepare the history of Tualatin Academy and Pacific University, to be forwarded to this office by next January 15th, where will be compiled educational and scientific reports for the U S Centennial Exhibition for 1876

Very respectfully yours
L. L. ROWLAND
Chairman Com E & S Reports

The undersigned, in fulfilling this service, [illegible] that the frequent mention of several [illegible] connected with this history has been [illegible] its truth and completeness. The [illegible] of history, as of a river are like hid[illegible] springs, hardly known, until the tiny rivulet [illegible] marks its own course

We can trace the rise of this institution to [illegible] two distinct and apparently independent [illegible], that united opportunely or as we [illegible] to say, providentially. What thoughts [illegible] been germinating in other minds before [illegible] from us.

The American Home Missionary Society in [illegible]tember, 1846, within a month after the [illegible] on the Oregon boundary had been made [illegible] by President Polk, having planned to [illegible] their mission work on the Pacific coast, [illegible] Oregon as a field, requested Rev G H [illegible] to be their pioneer missionary with [illegible] commission to aid in planting churches, [illegible] and to diffuse Christian knowledge [illegible] Badger, the secretary, directed him in May [illegible], to call upon Rev, Theron Baldwin, secretary of the then new Society, for promoting [illegible] and theological education at the [illegible]. The interview was brief, ending in [illegible] inclsive words "You are going to Oregon. Found an academy that shall grow into [illegible] college, as we founded Illinois College."

[illegible] two weeks after arriving at Oregon City, [illegible] 23, 1848, these words were repeated to [illegible] Harvey Clarke, who had came from Vermont and New York with his wife, as self-supporting missionaries to the Indians of Eastern [illegible], and thence to West Tualatin Plains, [illegible] Grove. The Oregon Association [illegible] Churches was there planned [illegible] organized, to meet at Oregon City, [illegible]ember, 1848. The subject was presented [illegible] that body, and the following minute was [illegible] of their action

"At the meeting of the Association of Congregational and Presbyterian brethren, September 21, 1848, it was resolved that it is expedient to found an academy under our patronage. On discussion, it was resolved that Tualatin Plains is the most favorable location. After continued discussion, it was resolved to appoint trustees, who shall locate an academy, become incorporated and attend to [illegible]."

[illegible] Harvey Clarke, Hiram Clark, Esq, P [illegible], Esq, Rev. Lewis Thompson, Wm. [illegible], Esq, Alvin T. Smith, Esq, James [illegible], Esq, O. Russel, Esq, and Rev G [illegible] were appointed trustees, who organized by electing Rev. H Clarke, president [illegible] secretary, A T Smith, [illegible], and Hiram Clark, Esq, auditor [illegible] by adopting a constitution and by-laws.

[illegible] had been moved to a similar [illegible] Mrs. Tabitha Brown, a lady of 68 [illegible] from Brimfield, Massachusetts, [illegible] minister, had followed [illegible] children and grand children [illegible] in 1846 to Oregon. Her [illegible] had been moved by the sight [illegible] many orphan children, left on the [illegible], and in 1847 she said to Mr Clarke "I wish I was rich!" "Why?" said he. "In order to found an orphan asylum and build up an educational institution to furnish a home and instruction for these children." The two formed the plan and collected the means to erect a log house for a home. Mrs Brown gathered in 40 or 50 children, boarding them for a dollar per week. They employed [illegible] and the enterprise was launched at West Tualatin. This orphan school was offered to the trustees of the proposed academy [illegible] grow into a college, and accepted by them. Rev. Harvey Clarke pledged 200 acres of his claim, taken and held under the then [illegible] government of Oregon [illegible] site of the academy and school village which was expected to grow up around it. The old log church, with mud chimney on the [illegible], and puncheon floor and seats within [illegible] and accepted as the temporary school house, and L. D. C. Latourette was [illegible]. Rev. C. Eells was next [illegible], and a contract was let to build a more commodious house of hewn logs [illegible] dollars having been subscribed. The [illegible] secured an act of incorporation from the first legislature of the Territory [illegible] of the United States [illegible] 1849, "establishing in Washington [illegible] a seminary of learning for the instruction of [illegible] of both sexes in science [illegible], to be known by the style of the President and Trustees of Tualatin [illegible], and [illegible] them, when it shall be expedient to do so, to exercise all the privileges [illegible] and trustees of a college or university, as the case may be, that should be exercised and enjoyed by the president and [illegible] of other colleges and universities that may hereafter be created in this Territory."

The land was laid out into blocks of four acres each, an acre to a lot, with streets four rods wide, and twenty acres were set apart for a campus; [illegible] of land pledged by Mr Clarke and [illegible] of land pledged by Mrs Stokes and Rev. E. Walker.

Meanwhile the gold mines of California had [illegible], and, though golddust in some hands was plenty, prices ruled high for labor, materials and food for all classes. The school grew in favor, and the need of more room led to the erection of what is now called the old college building. The orphan house block was sold for $3000, to be paid in the labor of the [illegible], rated at $10 per day. Lumber was bought at $50 to $60 per M. Lots were sold which, with other collections, paid $5,000 of the $7,000 which the building, enclosed with one or two rudely finished rooms, had cost.

The changes of teachers, the growing demands of this work, and the increasing debt laid a heavier burden upon Rev Mr Clarke and his family, and other trustees and friends than they could bear. Grave questions had called for frequent council's of the trustees during these early years, and you might see them coming on horseback by trails and [illegible] roads, through the woods to spend days and nights in anxious search and earnest prayer for wisdom to guide and means to execute their original plan. The tides of a changing population were annually flowing to and from the mines, and it became a more and more difficult problem to know what to do with this and other institutions and church buildings that were more or less dependent upon the same men.

At this juncture in April 18[illegible] [illegible] request of the trustees Rev Mr A[illegible] [illegible] to New York to enlist the aid of Eastern friends and especially of the College [illegible]. A circular reciting our efforts and [illegible] was published with endorsements of prominent ministers and business men in N[illegible]. The enterprise thus begun was [illegible] Dr Baldwin, who had given the [illegible] them before the College Society with a request to be adopted as the next [illegible] and to have the grant of $600 [illegible] of $10,000,) annually to support a professor. Both requests were granted and by public and private appeals $800 in cash and $300 in books were collected for the institution. A professor was engaged who after having spent weeks in studying text books and plans for the college course, declined the office, but introduced Rev S H Marsh [illegible] student in [illegible]. Then [illegible] Secretary Mr M[illegible] accepted a commission [illegible] and funds [illegible] work in Oregon [illegible] Dr [illegible] great grandfather had founded Dartmouth College in the woods of New Hampshire. Dr James Marsh his father had revived and [illegible] the University of Vermont [illegible]. The memory of the one and [illegible] many friends of the other like Hon Rufus Choate, Hon Sydney [illegible], Hon [illegible] P Marsh, Hon H J Raymond and Hon [illegible] Benedict and others would probably aid the enterprise in which the same was enlisted [illegible] has doubtless proved true. The first [illegible] thus adopted by the College Society with pledges of interest equal to an endowment of $10,000 having the renewed favor of the Am H M Society with a larger circle of new friends and a professor whose salary and [illegible] were assured and indeed cheering [illegible]. With this impetus in 1853 new [illegible] gathered to the Academy of which [illegible] M Keeler had become the principal [illegible] with crude but real college [illegible] formed the first preparatory classes placed under the care of Prof Marsh. Prof F D Shattuck, on becoming principal of the Academy, gave a still greater uplift to the institution. The library of over 1,000 volumes, collected by Prof Marsh had been placed upon its rude shelves, other rooms had been partly finished. The first act of incorporation had been replaced in January 1854 by one styled Tualatin Academy and Pacific University, with more distinctive college privileges. Pupils and parents had learned more of the aims and methods of the institution and though few had ever seen the example of a true college they were well disposed to it and in 1854 subscribed in lands and money $6,500 partially pledging $1,500 more. The community shared all the hardships of pioneers, added to the ferment of mining speculations and the terror of the Indian war of 1855. It was a day of trial and sacrifice to teachers, and in part to pupils but more of a great burden to Rev Mr Clarke who was held responsible for supplies and debts and improvements also and to other trustees who were toiling to provide for their young families. But all these friends sustained the institution, amid all the clouding proposals and discussions about change of location and subordination of the Academy to the College.

April 13th 1853 Rev S H Marsh was chosen President and was inaugurated Aug 21st 1855. F D Shattuck Esq was chosen professor of languages but not accepting this office, he continued through 1856 as principal of the academy.

The ever faithful College Society was relied upon to support the professors and applications were made in 1853 for $600, in 1854 for 6, 7 and 8 for $1,200 per year the first being granted and paid the larger sums were granted conditionally and paid as fast as possible by installments. In 1856 7 the faith of the college was tried by the departure of its students to the better endowed Eastern colleges. Our log houses had given way to frame dwellings, shops and churches forming a little village, yet there were no sure endowments. This exigency led to a special effort. Rev T Baldwin sent a free pass to Rev Mr Marsh to go to New York and help secure the annual salaries needed. Rev H Lyman having been chosen professor of mathematics, April 5, 1857, with Rev C. Eells, took charge of the declining institution and sustained it three school years. He reported the assets of Tualatin Academy and Pacific University, May 12th, 1859 at $18,200 and $3,000 in subscriptions with $850 debt.

The death of Mrs T Brown in 1857, and Rev H. Clarke March 24, 1858, with other tried co-workers before and since added to the past trials. Yet pupils who had spent a few months, or terms, or years, went away with new ideas of study, better fitted for business life and with some preparation for professional study.

Under the auspices of the College Society President S. H Marsh by patience and energy raised the general endowment and reported on his return May 21 1861 $21,738 10 valid subscriptions, and $1,200 in books receiving his expenses and $2,000 salary for two and a half years of collecting service.

With these funds new teachers and scholars came and new demands for extended instruction. The first graduate was H W Scott, Esq in 1863. The course of study was published to be in substance the same as that pursued in Eastern colleges, covering four years. The usual applications were made to the College Society for yearly aid but their funds were not equal to their demands. Four young gentlemen were graduated in 1866. President Marsh was again authorized to go East to obtain a larger endowment under a pledge of $1,500 currency salary and expenses leaving Prof Lyman in charge of the institution. Hon H W Corbett, as treasurer, had given special care to increase and invest the funds and W S Ladd, Esq having accepted the office and trust, faithfully did it in the same manner.

On June 16 1867 President Marsh reported new collections and subscriptions for general endowment, $25,228 04 and the appointment of two more professors, viz G H Collier professor of natural sciences, and J W Marsh professor of languages. The report of the treasurer May 6, 1868, showed a balance of $41,303 60 invested funds. The library had been increased by the efforts of Dr Marsh to about 5,000 volumes. The cabinets of botany and mineralogy have been also collected by the efforts of the professors in that department, yet the illustrations in philosophy and chemistry have been to some extent made with rude instruments, in part of home manufacture. The classes in the academy and college have been more distinctly organized and conducted, the public school having drawn off the lowest classified element. Students more patiently pursue the preparatory studies and some form of the collegiate course either the scientific or classic. New and gifted teachers have helped to raise and sustain the higher standard of the school while the numbers in all departments have not increased in like proportion.

President Marsh needing a sure salary made a third trip East in 1869 and reported May 3 1870 $20,012 75 subscribed for a presidential endowment fund.

The loss of valuable instructors has often worked harm to the institution as of Messrs Eells Shattuck Tanner and Anderson. The list of graduates from all the departments college, scientific, ladies' course and normal course is [illegible]. With the present corps of teachers and facilities much larger classes can be well taught and fitted for life work. Yet there is still need of more funds for apparatus and buildings and special professorships for which the president is making a fourth trip and appeal among the Eastern donors of the College and H M Mission Societies.

It is worthy of note that no trustee [illegible] of the board has such has received a [illegible] for his services or travel[illegible] expenses to the numerous trustees meetings and [illegible] its hours of consultation. Only teachers and other employes have been paid. The present secretary having held the office from the first meeting, in 1848, and made all the records with one or two exceptions is able to trace the growth and strength of the institution and to find its record [illegible] [illegible] benefits of the [illegible] the future. All its records have been [illegible] all its titles and surveys of [illegible] land have been [illegible] and abstracts [illegible] [illegible] village has grown [illegible] with charter rights and powers desirable for families and attractive to strangers. The public [illegible] of its alumni is felt in the circles of private and public life [illegible] [illegible] experiment. The trustees have learned by the past its [illegible] wants. Its opportunities for greater usefulness are enlarging every year while the [illegible] its best possible work is made by greater numbers of youth of both sexes. The steady growth of such men as have been and are in the faculty is its real force while it also depends upon the vital sympathy of the association which gave it organic shape and watched its [illegible]. The division of such [illegible] from the heart of the Christian [illegible] was a calamity that no golden endowments can compensate. Never has the touch of ecclesiastical control been laid upon it. Never is it possible for an ecclesiastical control of such churches to control a corporate board who fill their own vacancies. Never has the Association or Board of Trustees attempted to use the Institution for selfish ends. They have sought the common benefits shared by all the people in equal degree. The largest [illegible] has been given to the teachers and faculty in the conduct of the departments. The one aim of the board has been to do the utmost good to the children and youth of the land and thus to all the people. Any attempt to pervert the funds or to sequester any part of them to perpetuate personal or family connection with the academy or university beyond the choice of the trustees by attaching conditions to funds given for the common welfare will be a root of bitterness like the Dartmouth college case that had no remedy until it was purged by the highest tribunal of the nation. On the other hand our prospects grow clearer. We gain a higher position with every year of study and effort.

The Home Missionary Society and the College Society which suggested and which have by their large constituency of Christian donors sustained it deserve our gratitude. The laborious and faithful teachers and the far seeing and energetic president, with all other generous friends deserve well of the public for the constant benefaction of this academy and college. Its conduct in the past is its assurance in the future, in the hands of its custodians and teachers, whose names appear in the enclosed catalogue.

THE CONSULAR SYSTEM

(Special Dispatch to the N Y Times)

In the course of his examination Jan 21st before the House committee on expenditures Dr Newman explained to the committee with great detail the result of his observations while inspecting the various consulates in the East, and gave them a fund of information in relation to the consular system, which cannot fail to satisfy them that great injury may result to the public interest by reducing the number or pay of consuls in that part of the world. The Doctor was questioned about each of the consulates in China, Japan, Egypt and Palestine which he visited and surprised the committee by the fullness of his answers and convinced them that he had made thorough investigations at all points visited. Many consulates in China and Japan, which the committee had marked out for reduction or obliteration the Doctor showed to be points of great commercial interest, or important as havens for mariners or resorts for travelers. He explained how, in some tea growing districts the exports are invoiced at the port of shipment some miles distant. The consulate in the district where tea is grown and which pays a good salary thus loses the fees and is made to appear as of little importance in the printed report of consular operations. He thinks it would be better for the State Department to insist that all goods shipped to the United States should be invoiced at the port where they are prepared for shipment. He explained that we were fast losing our trade with China in drillings because English manufacturers are counterfeiting the American trade mark and imposing upon the Chinese an inferior article. While in England to confirm this matter he visited a factory in Manchester and saw drillings intended for China being stamped with an American trade mark. He spoke of under valuations of curios lacquer ware and merchandise of that class and thought it could only be corrected by requiring an appraisement of the goods upon their arrival in this country. There is no fixed value in China and Japan upon articles of that character and consuls must certify invoices according to the bills of sale produced by the shipper. In Palestine there is a growing trade in American agricultural implements, sewing machines and petroleum. He saw a caravan of 300 camels in the valley of the Euphrates the bulk of whose burden was petroleum. He thinks it highly important that the commercial agencies shall be maintained and believes that their increase would be attended with good results.

AN INGENIOUS DOCTOR. Dr W[illegible] of [illegible] attendant physician on Mrs W[illegible] whose miraculous restoration to health as a result of prayer was recently narrated by her pastor has made this statement. [illegible] [illegible] Mrs Williams' recovery [illegible] good health was not the result of prayer [illegible] was the result of the exertion of her will power [illegible] [illegible] she is now on the high road to health.

The French bury in single graves [illegible] They buy a lot [illegible] eight or nine or ten feet square if they are rich and there dig one grave deep enough for the whole family. Over this is built a little house in stone—a chapel—in the sides of which is written the names of the dead below.

DYNAMITE

[illegible] Democrat, Jan 1

A great deal has lately been said and printed about dynamite and on account of the recent horrible occurrence at Bremerhaven, when so many persons lost their lives [illegible] has become firmly fixed on the public mind that dynamite or giant powder as it is also called is an exceedingly dangerous substance to handle. [illegible] that there is not the slightest danger of any premature explosion. Mr [illegible] Julian, [illegible] agent of the Atlantic Giant Powder Company, has taken special pains to demonstrate. The dynamite was contained in a little house that stood on a common unprotected by fence or bond of any kind. It was probably [illegible] feet square [illegible] had no windows and but one metal door, several feet from the ground. Mr Julian unlocked the iron magazine door and proceeded to scramble in with a lighted cigar in his mouth. Selecting a [illegible] and box he pitched it out of the door down to the ground a distance of 6 or 8 feet without the least ceremony. The box fell and that was all. The scene of the Mosel was not repeated and no remains had to be gathered up with shovels. Clambering down and taking the box and an ax, a procession was formed to the bank of the river close by where a high bank presented a favorable spot for experiments. The theory that dynamite can be exploded by a sudden jar or concussion is utterly scouted by Mr Julian and in proof of his earnest belief in the truth of his assertion that it would not explode under such circumstances he took the box and threw it over the bank on some stones at the bottom. The box was shattered, the dynamite flew in all directions, was scattered here and there over the rocks but no explosion took place.

"I propose to show you that the theory of dynamite becoming dangerous by disintegration in freezing is utterly absurd. I have given the dynamite as severe a jar as was necessary to have exploded it, had it been possible to explode it in that way. When frozen, it is impossible to explode it at all, and even when thawed and in a pliable state it can be exploded only by the use of a suitable percussion cap and fuse."

The man of giant powder then descended and gathered up all the dynamite that and not fallen into the river and laying it on one of the shattered sides of the box brought it up and for the first time the press man gazed on the dreaded compound. It looked harmless enough then being a sort of greyish yellow material in cylindrical sticks 8 inches long and 1¼ inch in diameter. Encouraged by the boldness of Julian guests began to pick up pieces of the powder and examine it.

"What is it made of?"

"Nitro glycerine and infusorial earth."

"In what proportions?"

"We usually use about 75 per cent of nitro glycerine, though occasionally if any one wants more 78 per cent is put in and the powder shipped to him at once. Powder made with more than 75 per cent nitro glycerine is never stored."

"Where do you get the earth?"

"It comes from Germany." Occasionally we use California earth, and sometimes sawdust in manufacturing the second quality."

"How many qualities are there?"

"Three, but the only difference between the first and second is in the quantity of other substances. The third grade is made with nitro-glycerine and saw dust."

"And there is no danger of this pile exploding as long as it is frozen?"

"It is perfectly impossible for it to explode while it is frozen and after it is thawed it can be fired only with cap and fuse."

"Will percussion explode it?"

"I'll show you."

[illegible] strike the pile of dirty looking cylinders breaking them and scattering the scraps and fragments in every direction, while the bystanders looked on but no concussion followed.

"Now I'll burn a little to show that it will not explode from fire."

The fragments were gathered into a little pile several whole and broken cylinders were laid on for good measure apparently and the powder man coolly stooped over the heap containing dynamite enough to lay in ruins any house in St Louis, and, striking a match applied it to the substance. The flame caught slowly at first, rapidly afterwards now on a little projection, then on a round surface until the whole pile burned with a fierce pink flame and intense brilliancy, and such great heat that no one could stand within a dozen feet of it. For several minutes it hissed and glowed, and then subsided leaving a rock like residue which speedily hardened to the similitude of white quartz. Though the hissing was tremendous and the light and heat overpowering, there was not the faintest explosion. Mr Julian stated that in the burning of the meter 10,000 pounds of dynamite burned without explosion and that the company he represents lost 2,000 pounds by the burning of a Jersey City warehouse the other day, no explosion attending, either calamity.

After showing that it could not be hammered into explosion or [illegible] to go off by any other way than comparatively slow combustion Mr Julian proceeded to demonstrate that when frozen it could not be exploded even with a fulminate cap and fuse. A stick of dynamite was suitably prepared by a little boring with a pen knife to receive the cap and fuse, the latter was lighted the cap went off with a sharp report, but the chunk of explosive was found cracked and broken by the explosion of the cap but otherwise unchanged.

In order finally to prove that the material could be exploded the dynamite man took a portion of an unfrozen cartridge, which he carried in his pocket and the looker on could not fail to be impressed with the small size of the piece and the effects the operator seemed to expect from it. After preparing the dynamite the fulminate cap and the fuse, and after warning the others to get at a respectable distance he placed the charge beneath the river bank among some large loose stones, lighted the fuse, and hastily scrambling up the bank he lit out at his best rate which was fully equalled by that of the other eager scientists.

A safe distance was attained and after a moment's pause an explosion like that of a 12 pounder was heard under the bank the earth trembled and stones and dirt flew up [illegible]. Examination revealed the fact that the blocks of stone were thrown farther and farther a large quantity of dirt from the bank had been shaken down and other quite [illegible] effects had resulted. In answer to the inquiry as to whether the unfrozen dynamite was liable to explode from an accidental spark, Mr Julian simply took a long cartridge of the unfrozen substance and lighting one end of it with a match held it in his hand while burning.

[illegible] inquiries revealed the fact that dynamite, though having eight times the explosive force of gunpowder is regarded by all the railroad companies as perfectly harmless, being shipped as ordinary freight over all American roads. The principal factory of the Atlantic Giant Powder Company is at Drakesville, New Jersey, and there is a branch [illegible] in California. The use of it in this country is much more general among miners than is usually supposed as may be judged by the [illegible] who [illegible] more than 10,000 pounds a year. Mr Julian thinks that the [illegible] explosion was not caused by the fall of a cask but that there must have been fulminate caps prepared and the sudden jar to the clock work caused the explosion of these and consequently of the dynamite. It has been stated that dynamite cartridges are prepared with a fulminate cap ready for explosion, but this is absurd. No factory in the world would run the risk of manufacturing such cartridges.

Says a communication from Sicily to the [illegible]: Etna is not perfectly tranquil. About 7 on the evening of December 19th people remarked that on the eastern part of Mount Gibel a dense smoke mixed with reddish vapors was issuing from a secondary crater. While the giant is emitting flames from his flanks his head is covered with snow.

OREGON

The Mayor of Jefferson is seriously inclined to recognize the independence of Cuba.

Some rich mines are reported to have been recently discovered near Sumter, Baker county.

Major Cornoyer will probably take charge of the Umatilla agency and begin his official duties on the first of March.

Secretary Chadwick is sending out packages of road laws to the different counties as a gentle reminder to the inhabitants that it is time to improve their ways.

The proprietors of the Daily Bee [illegible] are complaining bitterly of the action of the Roseburg postmaster in refusing to send their little sheet through the mails.

The festival given for the benefit of the Sabbath school of Weston at Sading & Reese's Hall on the evening of the 24th ult, was a very fine affair and yielded some $30 or $40 toward the purchase of books.

The Albany Democrat says: "This morning, G W Gray, Esq, president of Linn Engine Co No 2, forwarded to Hudson, N Y the order for one of Clapp & Jones' steam fire engines together with an order for 500 feet of hose, hose cart and fire bell. Dr Gray expects that the engine and outfit will arrive here sometime in April.

The Albany Democrat says: "Every capitalist, mechanic, merchant, stock man or agriculturist in Albany or Linn county will consult their best interests, by giving all possible encouragement to every effort put forth to establish manufactories in our midst, however small and insignificant they may appear at first." And the same is true of every other county, capitalist, stock man or agriculturist in the State of Oregon.

The Baker City Democrat of the 2d inst says: "On last Sunday Superintendent M Hyde, of the Virtue mine shipped 486½ ounces of bullion valued at $9,000, to San Francisco. The above was the result of 12 days' run with 20 stamps. This is the second shipment from this mine for the month of January making a total of $17,000 for this month. The new working shaft has reached a depth of 100 feet, and is being sunk at the rate of 15 feet per week. The vein of ore in the same averages 2 feet. Between the first and second level north of main tunnel the ledge averages 2 feet, with slope of 120 feet and over 100 feet long solid ground. Here is found the richest rock ever found in Eastern Oregon."

THE TERRITORIES

Frank McFarlane and Pat Smith, who started from Silver City Idaho over two weeks ago, to hunt deer in the vicinity of Sinker creek, are supposed to be lost, none of their friends having heard from them since they left.

The clean up of Belle rock, in Owyhee district, from the crushing at the Shoenbar, for the month of January, yielded over $22,000. There is still a large quantity of rock at the mill to be crushed. The recent yield shows that the mine continues to turn out well.

The reports from the Black Hills continue to have quite a rosy tinge. It is said that there are now twelve thousand men in that portion of the Black Hills through which the Rapid creek runs. California Joe says $34 were taken out of one pan, there being one nugget worth $20.

The Leviathan mine on Florida mountain Idaho is turning out some splendid rock now. There are about 60 tons of it at the dump and additions at the rate of 5 tons a day are being [illegible] the pile. The ledge at the [illegible] where the rock is being taken out now is 4 feet wide, and [illegible] splendidly [illegible] streaks.

The number of Bannack and Shoshone Indians at the Fort Hall agency in Idaho Territory is 1,500, of which 750 are males, and 750 females. Very evenly divided indeed. The Indians in Idaho not under an agent are the Coeur d'Alenes, Pend d'Oreilles and Kootenays. At the Fort Lemhi special Indian agency there are 200 Bannacks, 200 Shoshones and 200 Sheep Eaters.

A large number of miners and business men, who are creditors of the Mahogany Gold and Silver Mining Company of Idaho have forwarded a proposition to the directors of that company in San Francisco, offering to lease the mine and devote the proceeds over and above the working expenses to the liquidation of the claims of such of the creditors as may come into the undertaking.

The Owyhee Avalanche of Jan. 31st, says: "James Dunnigan, a miner employed at the Golden Chariot met with his death yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, through an act of imprudence for which as near as we can ascertain the deceased alone is responsible. He was in the first level of the mine just previous to the event. The skip was about 200 feet below and Dunnigan without any authority rang the bell for it to stop. He stepped out towards the shaft the skip coming up slowly towards the surface at the time. He attempted to step on to it and is supposed to have slipped, his body falling across the edge. Life was extinct in a short time, the unfortunate man being crushed to death by contusions on the body near the vital parts."

THE INTERNATIONAL RIFLE MATCH

When the celebrated team of American small bore shots, says the London Telegraph of Jan 6, fresh from the victory over their Irish rivals at Dollymount, visited Wimbledon last year great regret was expressed that circumstances rendered it impossible for them to shoot a match there against a representative British team. The magnificent shooting of the Americans both in the match in Ireland and also in the individual competitions at Wimbledon showed them to be "foemen worthy of the steel" of the pick of Britain's great shots. At the conclusion of the match for the Elcho Shield Colonel Gildersleeve on the part of the Americans, said he had been instructed by the president of the American Rifle Association, to consult with the leading riflemen of this country with a view to a grand international match at Philadelphia in the autumn of 1876. The fruit of this was a formal challenge from the National Rifle Association of America to the National Rifle Association of England which was in due form accepted by the latter, Sir Henry Halford being appointed captain of the British team with Major Drake R E, known at Wimbledon for many years as Captain Drake as his adjutant. The captain is now addressing a letter to the leading small bore shots of England in which it is stated that it is proposed to take to America a team of eight with four waiting men. These twelve will be selected by two competitions, one in the spring and the other shortly after the Wimbledon meeting. Each competition will last two days and will consist of fifteen shots each day at 800, 900 and 1,000 yards, the rifles position, etc, being as in the American rifle competitions at Wimbledon. No sighting shots will be allowed nor any previous practice on the range selected within two clear days of the competition. At the conclusion of the final competition the twelve will be selected in the following manner. The three best total scores out of the four will be taken as the aggregate of each competitor and the sixteen competitors having the highest aggregates will then select the two first members of the team. These two will then select a third, the three a fourth, and so on until the twelve are complete. The captain of not in the sixteen and the adjutant will be ex officio members of each of these committees of selection. After the selection the twelve men must be prepared to shoot together for two days for accurate comparison and register of rifles, etc. They must also bind themselves to proceed to America at the time and in the vessel selected by the captain of the team and conform to all regulations laid down by him forfeiting in the event of not doing so, all right to shoot in the team. They must also defray their own expenses throughout, and must not make any engagements in America for business or pleasure without the consent of the captain until after the match has been fired.

LETTER FROM PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Jan 22, 1876.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Everybody has heard of Stephen Girard and of the famous college for orphans which his benevolent spirit prompted him to found and which his great wealth has been instrumental in making so completely successful. But few perhaps are familiar with the history of either and may be a short and imperfect sketch of both would prove of interest. A party of us took advantage of a foggy day a short time ago to visit the institution partly for pleasure and partly for the purpose of taking a few items for future use in case any of us should have occasion hereafter to inaugurate a similar enterprise. We were somewhat disappointed after our long tramp from a distant part of the city to find conspicuously posted at the gateway a notice that none were admitted without a permit from a director. Discouraged, but not to be baffled we applied at the office and after an extended argument of the case were finally allowed to enter upon our assurance that we were "right nice fellows and none of us ministers." Here at the gateway we were most forcibly reminded of one of the distinctive and best known features of the Girard will which declares that "no ecclesiastic, missionary or minister of any sect should be permitted even admission to the grounds. This is imperative and the interdicted clergy can only gain admission by doffing their white cravats and "by word of mouth subjecting themselves to the pains and penalties of perjury or by watching their opportunity to scale the massive wall which encloses the college grounds. To treat of the subject as we should in the order of time we will leave our party temporarily in the office registering their names in accordance with requirement, while we revert to the history of

STEPHEN GIRARD,

And the earliest inception of the college. To the great body of citizens among whom he moved he was simply a queer, eccentric old man, to the majority of the Christian public a doubter whose reflections upon the clergy were unjust and inexcusable, to the world, a wise and earnest philanthropist, and no one can read the history of the man and consider what his bequest has accomplished and is likely to accomplish and doubt that the world adjudged him aright. Like many others who have occupied a similar place in the eyes of the world, he was nurtured in the school of adversity and owed his great success to his own unaided efforts. In his biography we are told that he was born in Bordeaux on the 21st of May, 1750, and only enough of his childhood is known to indicate that it "had no pleasant or sweet remembrances" and he himself has written, "I have the proud satisfaction to know that my conduct, my labor and my economy have enabled me to do one hundred times more for my relatives than they altogether have ever done for me since the day of my birth." Before he was fourteen years of age, he embarked as a sailor and continued for the next nine years to follow the sea. By degrees he became involved in mercantile pursuits, finally giving up his occupation as a sailor, though still and to the end of his life, making his old nurse, the sea, instrumental in building up what resulted in a collossal fortune. Though his interests were very great in New York and New Orleans, Philadelphia became his headquarters and permanent home and his influence was sensibly felt in the earlier history of the "Quaker City," he served for many years in her councils, was warden of the port, for [illegible] of her public institutions. Throughout his whole life a cloud seems to have hung over his domestic affairs. Driven from home at an early age, without being vouchsafed a single God speed or kindly word of benediction, he went forth only to meet with even more bitter domestic misfortunes. Married to a young lady of Philadelphia, in 1777, his unhappy wedded life lasted for eight years, when his wife becoming deranged, was consigned to an insane asylum, where she remained until her death, thirty years afterwards. Who can tell what might have been his destiny had his home life been unclouded? A stranger, throughout all his career, to those home associations and amenities which make life desirable he cooped himself up in a dwelling house, under the same roof with his counting room in a narrow street near the river, and in a locality almost entirely occupied by stores, and wedded to his pursuits of gain, passed there his lonely, dreary, busy life. We can hear his smothered cry of the heart in his words: "As to myself, I live like a galley slave, constantly occupied and often passing the night without sleeping. I am wrapped up in a labyrinth of affairs, and worn out with care. I do not value fortune. The love of labor is my highest ambition. When I rise in the morning my only effort is to labor so hard during the day that when night comes I may be enabled to sleep soundly." There's a lesson of contentment in these words for somebody. Still, he was not a misanthrope, and no appeal to him for his suffering fellow men was passed unheeded, and his self-denying charity was nowhere more conspicuously shown than during the famous yellow fever epidemic here in 1793, when, while the city became almost deserted from a fear of the plague, he voluntarily offered himself as a manager to superintend the hospital intended for its victims, and though already a man of wealth and influence with a brilliant prospect before him, showed himself willing in the interests of humanity to risk all in the possibility of contracting a loathsome disease and being buried in a nameless grave in some potter's field. Such was the life of Stephen Girard—a life long and well spent. In the winter of 1830 he was thrown down while walking the streets, by a passing vehicle, but finally rallied from the effects of this almost fatal accident, only to fall a victim to pneumonia, of which he died on Dec 26 1831. Of his fortune estimated at $7,500,000, he left $2,000,000 for the erection and endowment of

GIRARD COLLEGE,

To the city of Philadelphia, $500,000; to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, $300,000, and to relatives, friends and various charities upwards of $500,000. He also devised to the cities of Philadelphia and New Orleans 280,000 acres of land in Louisiana but this was subsequently lost to the legatees by a decision of the U S supreme Court. The rest of his wealth was devised to the city of Philadelphia for the improvement and maintenance of his college, for the establishment of a better system of police, to improve the city and to diminish taxation. It seems to have been his original intention to have located the college buildings upon the block included between Market and Chestnut and Eleventh and Twelfth streets, now in the very heart of the business portion of the city, but becoming afterwards the possessor of the farm of Peel Hall on the Ridge road, he chose that as a more favorable site, and it is there the buildings were finally located. Ridge road now bears the more aristocratic title of Ridge avenue and the old farm of Mr Peel Hall is anything but a quiet country resort. The site upon which the buildings are erected [illegible] well with their splendor and magnificence and from their elevation they form conspicuous objects not only from the higher windows and roofs of every part of Philadelphia but from the Delaware river many miles below the city and from [illegible] far out into the country, while the view from the marble roof of the main edifice is grandly beautiful embracing the city and its environs for many miles around. The general design of the main building is that of a Greek temple and—to give a faint idea of its magnitude and imposing appearance—has on its four sides thirty-four columns of marble six feet in diameter and fifty five feet in height each weighing 103 tons and costing $13,000. The entire building is marble from foundation to dome, the weight of the roof itself being 906 tons and that of the whole building 76,594½ tons. Grouped about are a half dozen other buildings scarcely inferior in size and splendor used principally as dormitories for students. Upon entering the main edifice we are confronted with a statue of Girard, while just in the rear is the sarcophagus containing his remains. The various rooms here are mostly devoted to the purposes of recitations, cabinets, etc, though one is sacred to the old household furniture, books, pictures and business papers of the philanthropist. On the grounds with [illegible] just west is a fine monument erected in honor of the 200 students of the college who saw service in the armies of the Union during the late war. In the bedrooms, wash rooms, dining rooms and kitchens of the dormitories there is everywhere evidence of a uniform system calculated to make the most excellent impression on the students and demonstrative to a certain extent of those habits of life which contributed so much to the success of the founder. There are at present 550 students sharing the advantages of the college, besides hundreds of applicants for whom they are now unable to provide. The will provides that "any white male orphan between the age of six and ten years" may be admitted. This is understood to admit any who are fatherless only, and they are allowed to remain until from sixteen to eighteen years of age, when they shall be bound out to any trade or profession for which they seem best adapted. The advantages of the college are limited. First, to orphans born in Philadelphia, secondly, to those born in any other part of Pennsylvania, thirdly, to those born in the city of New York, and, lastly, to those born in the city of New Orleans. In accordance with a provision of the will which required an annual report of the income, etc, of his trusts, the directors of city trusts have recently published a statement from which it appears that the total assessed value of the property is $6,580,000, which yielded the past year an income of $365,000, $192,000 of which was expended in maintaining and educating the 550 orphans and in extraordinary repairs to the college buildings, while the larger portion of the remainder is to be expended upon new buildings. Plans are already prepared for additional buildings to accommodate 500 more students, a move rendered necessary from the fact that there are hundreds of applicants, and that they are just now reaching applications made two years since. They are detered by the fact that a determined attempt is being made to force streets through the college grounds, which occupy a large tract of land. The citizens in the neighborhood are of the sordid kind who are more than willing to sacrifice sentiment to convenience and bodily comfort, and their efforts are so likely to prove successful that the college directors, as if forecasting the coming result, are discussing the question as to whether a tunnel or a bridge is most desirable. To revert to the will again, in conclusion, that feature which has brought upon the head of the author such a shower of maledictions, seems, on perusal, to be comparatively harmless, after all. It enjoins "that no ecclesiastic, missionary, or minister of any sect whatsoever, shall ever hold or exercise any station or duty whatever in the said college; nor shall any such person ever be admitted for any purpose, or as a visitor, within the premises appropriated to the purposes of the said college.—In making this restriction, I do not mean to cast any reflection upon any sect or person whatsoever, but as there is such a multitude of sects and such a diversity of opinion amongst them, I desire to keep the tender minds of the orphans, who are to derive advantage from this bequest, free from the excitement which clashing doctrines and sectarian controversy are so apt to produce," etc. The students are not as might be inferred from this extract, denied of all religious instruction, but so far as quantity, at least, is concerned, are specially favored [illegible] from the Bible with prayer [illegible] exercise through the week, but have on Sunday to attend four distinct religious services, all conducted by laymen. This being the case the spiritual nature of the young orphans is not so likely to suffer from want of spiritual food after all, and perhaps the detractors of the grand old founder had better turn their batteries upon some more deserving object. As they are dealing with the dead why not call up the spirit of Wm. B Astor, and inquire why he, whose $200,000,000 might have founded a similar institution in every leading city of the Union and still have left his "poor relations" something more than the crusts of poverty to munch, did not follow in the footsteps of the grand old Frenchman, and thus render his name as imperishable as the ages. The works of Girard are the credentials which entitle him to the undying regard of his fellow men, and without inquiring whether he was a skeptic or a devotee they will not be slow to award him that place to which those works have entitled him.

A PRETTY FICTION

[From a Madrid Letter.]

Notice had been posted on all the public places that on a certain day the bull called "El Moro" would be introduced into the arena, and that, when he should have been goaded to the utmost fury, a young girl would appear and reduce the animal to quiet and subjection. The people of Cadiz had heard of "El Moro" as the most magnificent bull ever brought into the city, and it soon became known that the girl thus advertised was a peasant girl of Espara, who had petted the bull, and fed it and cared for it during the years of its growth. On the appointed day the vast amphitheater was filled with an anxious, eager crowd. The bulls had been killed and dragged away, and the flourish of trumpets announced the coming of the hero of the day. With a deep, terrific roar "El Moro" entered upon the scene. He was truly magnificent, a bovine monarch, black and glossy, with eyes of fire, dilated nostrils and wicked looking horns. The picadores attacked him warily, and hurled their banderillos (small, dart-like javelins, ornamented with ribbons and intended to goad and infuriate). The bull had killed three horses off hand, and had received eight banderillos in his neck and shoulders, when, upon a given signal the picadores and metadores suddenly withdrew leaving the infuriated beast alone in his wild paroxysm of wrath. Presently a soft musical note, like the piping of a lark, was heard and directly afterward a girl not more than 15 years of age, with the tasteful garb of an Andalusian peasant, and with a pretty face, sprang lightly into the arena, approaching the bull fearlessly at the same time calling his name "Moro! Moro! Ya voy!" At the first sound of the sweet voice the animal ceased his fury and turned toward the place whence it came and when he saw the girl he plainly manifested pleasure. She came to his head and put forth her hand, which he licked with his tongue. Then she sang a low, sweet song at the same time caressing the animal by patting him on the forehead, and, while she sang the suffering monarch kneeled at her feet. Then she stooped and gently removed the cruel banderillos, after which, with her arms around "El Moro's" neck, she led him toward the gate of the toril.

WEDNESDAY MORNING FEB 9 1876

WANTED A STATESMAN

After having been fifteen years in the minority it was not to be expected that the Democrats should have a great many statesmen but it has been a matter of astonishment to many that they have shown so few. Blunders have marked every move they have attempted. Whoever the leader of the House may be whether Mr Morrison chairman of the ways and means committee or Mr Randall, chairman of the committee on appropriations he has not exhibited the qualities which should belong to the man who is to shape the policy of the dominant party. There is no one on the Democratic side who does and perhaps no one who can control his party. Mr Wood who was at one time regarded as the future leader of the majority made a blunder in his abortive attempt to reopen the Louisiana business. Mr Randall was equally unfortunate in the amnesty affair. Mr Cox was unequal to the occasion when he attempted to reply to Blaine, and Mr Morrison has hitherto done nothing. These are the men who have been regarded as the Democratic leaders. Of the others Mr. Lamar has as yet done nothing to prove his right to the high estimation in which he has been held. If he is a great statesman, as he is unquestionably an honorable high minded gentleman, he has yet to demonstrate it. One thing is certain, he either did not see the trap laid for his party by Mr Blaine, or if he did, he was powerless to prevent them from falling into it. Mr Hill, indeed, distinguished himself, but in a way that was not creditable to himself or useful to his friends. The debate on the amnesty bill was an occasion when a great statesman might have done great things, and nobly won for himself the gratitude and applause of the nation, but there was no one on the Democratic side in Congress wise and brave enough to see and to do what was right. On the Republican side Mr Blaine stands the acknowledged leader of his party. He has the power, and uses it, to manage his forces best calculated to effect the most brilliant results. Thus far no one has appeared who is able to cope with him—Cox, Randall and Hill have each attacked him and been worsted. But to engage in contests is not what these gentlemen were sent there for. The duty before them is to heal, not to inflame old wounds, to calm, not to excite political strife.

"And now that both sides have had their little parliamentary skirmish, would it not be well for the one to rest on its laurels and the other to avoid repeating its blunders? The Democrats have shown to a demonstration that they are not sufficiently familiar with legislative responsibilities to undertake to cope with the trained leaders of the minority. The Republicans have displayed their ingenuity, quickness, and skill in outmaneuvering their opponents. Why not let it rest there?' The interests of the country demand some attention. Depressed industries, an unstable currency, prostrate commerce, unproductive enterprises, idle [illegible] to which the attention of Congress should be turned. These are matters for serious discussion, and they are subjects which the people ask Congress to consider. Thus far we have had nothing but tactics and politics, personalities and partisanship. Let us have a change."

NO MORE COLD WEATHER

The Rev. B Wrolfolk is a gentleman of decidedly original ideas. He has recently been devoting the energies of his powerful mind to the discovery of a method for controlling winds and storms and for breaking down the icy barriers of the Arctic ocean. In a lecture on this subject delivered in Louisville, Kentucky, he began by enunciating the indisputable fact that the south wind brings the warmth of a sunnier clime, while the north wind brings Arctic cold. If the south wind could be kept blowing all winter over the continent, the weather would be constantly warm.' He then proceeded to show that the north wind and south wind could not both blow at the same place at the same time, and, 'consequently, if man can make a track for the north wind, and keep it there, he can by this means keep the south wind on the surface at all other points, and thus maintain genial weather.' 'Storms,' he said "were simply the result of a conflict between these two currents, the one pressing toward the pole, the other toward the equator," and all that is necessary to do to prevent storms is to keep these two currents from meeting. This he proposed to effect by establishing a through line for the north wind, and keeping the south wind from it. This through line from the North Pole to the equator was to run over the Pacific ocean midway between America and Asia. He said that he could make this by establishing a battery of the heaviest cannon on the westernmost of the Aleutian Islands, which should keep up a perpetual cannonade to break a track for the north wind and give it a fair start towards the equator. He was eloquent in depicting the effect of thus keeping open the boreal track in the Pacific. The deserts of Asia and America would be visited with seasonable rains. Warm weather would blow up the Atlantic into the Arctic ocean, bearing before them tropical waters, until the Arctic coasts swept with tropical winds, would become habitable and the Arctic seas flooded with tropical air and tropical waters would become the highway of commerce, and vessels would sail through open water at the pole.

One thought suggests itself just here—after the Arctic seas shall have become flooded with tropical air and the ice now there shall have melted, what will there be there to give coldness to the tamed north wind or to make it necessary to continue the cannonading beyond a limited period? Speaking in the interest of wool growers whose business will be broken up if this scheme for abolishing cold weather succeeds, we are opposed to any attempt to [illegible] north winds from the face of the earth.

FLOWERS FOR CONGRESSMEN

The joint committee on the library of Congress in order to secure an equitable distribution of the flowers in the public gardens and conservatories, have ordered that three bouquets shall be arranged each day for the use of Senators and seven to be at the disposal of the members of the House. The Times says: It is evident that the scramble for [illegible] and [illegible] has driven the joint committee to this decisive course. The joint committee have done wisely to stop the promiscuous looting of the flower beds. In their rapacity for bouquets the new Congressmen have probably stripped the bushes of buds and have driven the venerable gardener into temporary delirium. But nobody will envy the joint chairmen of the library committee, who are authorized to determine the manner in which these bouquets shall be distributed to their several houses. Imagine Mr Hiester Clymer who is an accomplished manager of Democratic conventions charged with the distribution of seven diminutive bunches of flowers among 29 Representatives. Framing a platform which should be acceptable to hard money and soft money Democrats, Protectionists and Free traders would be easy work compared with the task of satisfying the clamor of 20 Congressmen representing at least twice as many ladies who have each insisted on having a Congressional bouquet for a particular reason. Whether this floral apportionment will be made on the basis of population does not yet appear. Three Senators and three Representatives have sole charge of this momentous business. They will discharge their duty with fidelity to the constitution.

The Roumanians have pretty plainly intimated to the Porte that they do not intend in the future to pay tribute to Turkey. The weakness of Turkey is every day becoming more evident. The insurrection in Herzegovina has increased in strength and the revolted provinces seem to be able to hold their own against all that Turkey can do. The recent battle near Trebigne, in which four or five hundred men were killed proves that the insurgents are well supplied with arms and ammunition, and that they are not deficient either in leaders or organization. The neighboring provinces sympathize with those which have revolted and in many ways lend them efficient aid. The political existence of Turkey is in imminent peril and it is not unlikely that the downfall of Turkey is near at hand.

President Eliot of Harvard College, says: I am an advocate of compulsory elementary education and of an enforced reading and writing test for the ballot because although education alone will not preserve free institutions diffused elementary education is one of the essential conditions of the formation of that sound national character upon which the safety of our political institutions does absolutely depend. There are a great many others who hold the same opinion.

During the Senatorial contest in the Kentucky legislature which ended with the election of Mr Beck, a Mr Craddock made a little speech in which he said that he had "sucked Democratic for twelve years." What Democratic nourishment Craddock had sucked does not appear but the intelligent reader must infer that it was the juice for which Kentucky is famous.

PLUMMER FRUIT DRYER.

AS A PROOF OF WHAT I HAVE HERETOFORE stated to the people of Oregon I give below a letter from the Plummer Fruit Drying Co of East Portland. After the close of business of 1875 fully endorsing it after using it one entire season and as a proof to substantiate what they say, they now contemplate putting up another Dryer of the same capacity of the one they now have which will increase their capacity to five hundred bushels of apples per day. Having now located here in Portland for the purpose of supplying the demand for Fruit Dryers in Oregon and Washington Territory I can supply these dryers at a cost of from $2 000 to $4 000 according to capacity. Warranted to dry from 8 to 16 bushels of apples per hour, at a small cost for labor and fuel. These machines being so cheap and simple in construction they cannot fail to supersede all other known machines. I would also say to the fruit growers that I have invented a Machine (and am now waiting for a patent) that will cut and spread the fruit on the trays with a very small amount of labor. I also have invented a Peach Parer that is on an entirely new principle paring soft as well as hard. does its work well with great speed and slices and pits the fruit ready for the Dryer in the best possible manner, and at a great saving in quantity of fruit.
W S PLUMMER Patentee,

FRUIT DRYER TESTIMONIALS.

EAST PORTLAND, Jan 4th 1876

MR. W. S PLUMMER—Dear Sir: As this is a time when all are much interested in Fruit Drying we think that in justice to you and for the information of the public it is but right and proper that we should give all the information that we can. Now after having operated your Dryer during this season we feel warranted in saying that for the amount of money invested we still believe as we did from the start that your Dryer is the best Dryer yet introduced into this country. The capacity of the Dryer we find to be about 8 (eight) bushels per hour. The Dried fruit we claim to be as good as any, though perhaps not as much bleached as the 'Alden' Fruit, and we are satisfied that we can produce [illegible] stockholders of our Company manifested their confidence in the Plummer Dryer at our meeting last Saturday by a unanimous vote to increase the capital stock $12 000 (twelve thousand dollars) for the purpose of adding one more Dryer to the present one and making other improvements for next season. We will further say that we believe that by an improvement made by the patentee in the Heater and Fan that there will be an increase of capacity and a saving of Fuel.
H HANSON President
J S NEWELL Secretary and Superintendent

EAST PORTLAND Dec 11 1875

MR PLUMMER—Dear Sir: I have been watching both the Alden and your Fruit Dryer the past season so as to determine which was the best Machine for drying Prunes. I visited the Alden Dryer at Oregon City and examined the Prunes dried on that Machine and I have also examined several lots dried on your Machine at East Portland and my opinion is that your Dryer is far the best Machine for drying Prunes. My reasons are these: Your Machine dries them without bursting or cracking while I noticed that a great deal of the fruit dried on the Alden Machine was bursted open and after a Prune is bursted in drying it is worthless for market as a Prune therefore I can recommend your Machine for drying Prunes or any thing else. Yours truly

Choice Farms for Sale.
3,000 ACRES, IN QUANTITIES TO SUIT PURCHASERS.
220 ACRES DUE SOUTH AND ADJOINING [illegible] tivation and suitable for grain or vegetables
946 ACRES four miles southeast of Salem, on the railroad with Mill creek running through it. This is the choicest farming land in Marion county, with fine springs consisting in part of the old Rector donation claim on which I raised the present year fifty bushels of wheat and three tons of timothy per acre. The first crop of oats ever raised on part of this land measured ninety four bushels per acre grain weighed and ground chained by Mr Alfred Stanton of Salem
2,700 ACRES of prairie and light brush land with timber for farming purposes, bounded by the Willamette river for four miles, beautiful lake on the east, boat landings all along the river commencing four miles north of Salem—all choice grain land—the largest and most suitable body of land to be found in the Willamette valley to be purchased by a colony. To be sold from $15 to $25 per acre. This land will all be immediately resurveyed and can be sold in larger or smaller parcels to suit purchasers. It can be subdivided to the best possible advantage and I can offer any person or persons or colony of persons desiring to purchase homes in the best part of the Willamette valley near the city of Salem and within reach of the best social advantages as well as most favorably located with respect to markets greater advantages on more favorable terms, than they ever expect to realize again. which occasion there was present a large au cultivated audience much larger in fact tha we yet attended at either of the preceding le tures of the series. As previously announce
Mr. Hill chose for the subject of his lecture
Five Hundred Years of Civil War. Th
speaker occupied an hour in the delivery lecture which was listened to with pr found attention by the large audience an well received. At the close of the lecture M Hill was heartily applauded and waited upo
many of his friends who congratulat him in the warmest terms upon the mann which he had acquitted himself. Prof M

A GOOD TIME—In pursuance of an invit
on of the foreman of Willamette Engin
Co. No 1 some of the members met at the hall last evening and a general talk was ha in regard to company affairs in which a m al understanding was aimed to be arrived to the best plans for rendering the co
any most efficient in attaining the utmo proficiency in the discharge of their duties firemen. While all spoke freely the mo perfect harmony prevailed, and some sugg tions were thrown out which, if acted upo will tend to promote the order and efficienc that ought to characterize all the compani of the department. After the talk their hall those in attendance repaired on th
the invitation which had called them t
gether, to the restaurant of Messrs Alisky

REARRESTED—The Walla Walla Statesma
of the 6th inst says: Dock Phelps, the Cany
City stage robber who went up to Dayton la week has again gone below in custody of Jac
Vincent, Deputy U S Marshal. We unde stand that Phelps was released on his parol
but the officials became fearful that he wou take the opportunity to escape and ordere him into custody. The two men implicate by Phelps in his confession were arrested i California and by this time most likely are Portland. One of these men is named Charl
Darnell, and the other Shepardson, ali
Gomily. These three men perpetrated th robbery, and now after the lapse of over thr years are to be brought to justice. Phelps w terribly downcast when he passed throug town, and evidently thinks he has a hard ro

THIRD LECTURE.—Hon. Wm. Lair Hill delivered the third lecture of the course last evening at the room of the Y M C A on which occasion there was present a large and cultivated audience—much larger in fact than has yet attended at either of the preceding lectures of this series. As previously announced Mr. Hill chose for the subject of his lecture "Five Hundred Years of Civil War." The [illegible] occupied an hour in the delivery of his lecture, which was listened to with profound attention by the large audience and well received. At the close of the lecture Mr Hill was heartily applauded and waited upon by many of his friends, who congratulated him in the warmest terms upon the manner in which he had acquitted himself. Prof McGibeny and family entertained the audience before the lecture commenced, by rendering several of their popular songs in a spirited style, and also one at the close. A unanimous vote of thanks was returned Mr Hill for his excellent and interesting lecture, and the McGibeny family for the entertaining music furnished. The next lecture of the course will be delivered on the evening of Feb. 29, by Rev Mr Ellis of Forest Grove. Subject, "Catching a Tartar."

A GOOD TIME.—In pursuance of an invitation of the foreman of Willamette Engine Co. No. 1, some of the members met at their hall evening, and a general talk was had in regard to company affairs, in which a mutual understanding was aimed to be arrived at as to the best plans for rendering the company most efficient in attaining the utmost proficiency in the discharge of their duties as firemen. While all spoke freely the most perfect harmony prevailed, and some suggestions were thrown out which, if acted upon will tend to promote the order and efficiency that ought to characterize all the companies of the department. After the "talk" at their hall, those in attendance repaired on the same invitation, which had called them together, to the restaurant of Messrs Alisky & Hegele, where a bountiful repast was spread which was partaken of with due relish. A portion for the reporters found its way to this office, for which our thanks are returned and of which we partook, wishing Oneesters all prosperity.

[illegible]—The Walla Walla Statesman of the 6th inst. says Dock Phelps, the Canyon City stage robber who went up to Dayton last week has again gone below in custody of Jack Vincent, Deputy U. S. Marshal. We understand that Phelps was released on his parole, but the officials became fearful that he would take the opportunity to escape, and ordered him into custody. The two men implicated by Phelps in his confession, were arrested in California, and by this time most likely are at Portland. One of the men is named Charles Darnell, and the other, Shepardson, alias Hominy. These three men perpetrated the robbery, and now after the lapse of over three years are to be brought to justice. Phelps was visibly downcast when he passed through town, and evidently thinks he has a hard road to travel.

LIST OF PASSENGERS.—The steamer Ajax which sailed for San Francisco, carried away the following passengers: Mrs. E M [illegible], Samuel Meade and wife, Thos. Hunter, L. J. Khawl, Capt. L. Kempff, M W [illegible], Wm. A. Farnsworth, John Heal, J. S. Case, F. Andrews, U. S. Brewster, R. Weeks and wife, Chas F. Navarre, G. Swan, [illegible], D. Knapp and wife, Eli Terpenning and wife, Geo. Belum, C. N. Fort, L. B. Chenoweth, C. M. Armstrong, J. R. Simburn, Andrew Thompson, L. Matt, wife and three children, Wells, Fargo & Co.'s messenger, and 30 in the steerage.

RESOLVED TO CELEBRATE.—At a regular meeting, held Monday evening, of the Hibernian Benevolent Society, it was determined to celebrate in a becoming manner St. Patrick's Day, by parade and ball. It was also [illegible] the society to celebrate the coming 4th of July, and to that end a committee appointed by the society to confer with the other committees in relation to the proper observance of the one hundredth anniversary of the nation's independence. This [illegible] of Messrs. R. B. Sinnott, [illegible] and E. McCullough.

[illegible] FESTIVAL.—The ladies of the East Portland M. E. church, for the purpose of swelling the fund for the purchase of a bell for the church, will give an [illegible] this evening at Odd [Fellows' Hall], East Portland. Connected with [illegible] will come off various musical and [illegible] exercises, adding much interest to the [illegible]. The Amphion Quartette Club, of this city will be present and sing a variety of pieces. Price of admission 25 cents, oysters and supper extra. A good time is anticipated.

[illegible] FROM THE MASQUERADE

In the haste to procure particulars and names of characters, we omitted mention of several which deserved special notice. The "make up" of Mr. Dexter as Sir John Falstaff was faultless, and he was only prevented personating the character from the fact that his intentions were not reciprocated by the ladies though fully in accord with the sense of the author of the "Merry Wives of Windsor." Messrs. Josh Davis and Chas. Abraham personated the Chinese characters in dress and action and close imitation of the Chinese vernacular better than we have ever seen it done at entertainments of a similar character. Mr. Gilz, who got up such a clever imitation of a lobster, at the masquerade last year showed his genius at the recent ball by appearing as a bat, and had he remained till the unmasking we may have had occasion to mention his name under the prize heading. Mr. Metzgar who represented the character of Charity collected [illegible] $20 for the fund of the Relief Society of the Turn Verein. The youths who mimicked the elephant flagged out at an early hour. The OREGONIAN's representative is indebted to several of the [illegible] who favored him in many ways. The sum [illegible] will be known in a few days and we [illegible] the Turn Verein will net even more than they anticipated.

BRIEF NOTES.

The ice factory has commenced to grind out the cooling article.

The ship Hannibal is reported off the bar with a pilot on board.

The new board of delegates will hold their first meeting to-morrow evening.

Chas Lawrence had a gang of men from the city jail cleaning the streets yesterday.

The barkentine Portland arrived here yesterday, bringing about 600 tons of assorted merchandise.

Mr Thos Huntington who has a plastering contract on the capitol building has gone to San Francisco to procure material.

Mrs O S Phelps teacher in the public school who has been confined to her residence is improving and soon will be out again.

Knee breeches, shoe buckles, cocked hats, planchette and velocipedes will prevail this year. The spirit of '76 must be kept alive by every man cute of the time that tried men's souls.

The telegraph line is down on account of the snow on Trinity mountain, which is the excuse for meager showing of news matter this morning. It was up between five and six o'clock last evening.

It is said that a woman well known in Portland has commenced an action for damages against one of the old property owners here for slander. The complainant estimates her damages at $10,000.

No one realizes how thoroughly disregardful a man can be of the eternal fitness of things until he sees him slip up on a piece of orange peel, with an abundance of soft black mud in the neighborhood.

When a man detects a missing button after getting on a clean shirt no one is aware of the fact. He takes off the shirt and puts on another quietly smiling all the while. He never speaks of it to a soul.

1st Lieutenant Thomas Garvey 1st cavalry is relieved from duty at Fort Colville W. T. and as soon as the condition of the roads will enable him to leave his post, will repair to San Francisco and report in person to the assistant adjutant general at division headquarters.

The bill for the worsted that a Fourth street woman used in working a dog on her husband's slippers was brought into him the other day and he remarked to her that he wasn't going to pay any dollar and a half for any such fixing. "But you wanted a dog on them," responded the wife. "So I did, madame, so I did but you might have made a darned sight smaller dog."

LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE Y. M. C. A.

PORTLAND, Jan. 27, 1876

To REV G H ATKINSON—Dear Brother

By recent action of the board of managers of the Y M C A, of this city, I am charged with the very pleasant duty of acknowledging your communication of Jan 5, 1876, relative to placing in the hands of the Y M C A, in trust, the remaining volumes in the depository of the Oregon Tract Society. I am instructed to say that the board of managers of our association accepts the trust, and will take measures for the proper care and use of said books as a public library. We thank you for the book case, and will see to the proper care of it. I will see at once to the appointment of a committee for the purpose of selecting other books, to the limit of $100, as you indicate. It does seem to me that this action on the part of yourself and the directors of your society, will be the means of securing a really free library in Portland.

Respectfully and sincerely yours
M C WILKINSON
President Y M C A

POLICE COURT NOTES.

Chas Robuck was adjudged a vagrant and committed to jail for five days.

The cases of David Beatto and Dwyer, arrested for being drunk were continued until this morning.

Frederick Dakeon was arraigned on a charge of threatening to kill. He was held to answer and in default of bonds committed to the county jail.

Wm Holsapple, for assaulting Clara Chapelle was arrested yesterday afternoon but on depositing $40 bail was released. The case will be tried this morning.

PERSONAL.

Braving the mud and snows on the Rogue river and Cascade Mountains our friend Geo L. Strong will start from Portland for Linkville this morning, bearing with him our humble wishes for his future prosperity. His musical voice will not probably be heard in these parts for many days and when he comes back, whether "with his shield or on it," we will be glad to see him.

EUGENE CITY ITEMS

M. L. H., writing from the above place under date of Feb 8th, sends the following:

Leap year parties, where indiscriminate osculation is indulged in, are voted just the thing by the boys.

S M Titus has leased the stable owned by Nels Luckey, and now controls the entire livery business of the city.

The Eugene brewery will be sold at administrator's sale on the 12th. This is a desirable property, and a good chance for a bargain.

Eclectic Lodge I O G T installed officers Saturday night. B F Dorris is W C T. This lodge has a membership of 86 and promises fair to escape the fate that has overtaken its numerous predecessors. The room upstairs in Dunn's brick, is neat, commodious and well furnished.

At the regular firemen's meeting last evening a resolution was passed remonstrating with and calling the attention of the council to the random shooting indulged in by certain city officers. This resolution refers to reckless firing by the night watchman on the occasion of a recent false alarm.

The steamer Ohio arrived at this place Sunday evening bringing 30 tons of salt for F. B. Dunn. She returned next morning, with 100 tons of wheat. During the last month 700 tons or about 25,000 bushels of wheat has been shipped from here by rail and river. There yet remain in the different warehouses about 20,000 bushels.

In view of the stringency of the money market Messrs Fishel & Roberts are offering from their large stock of clothing goods at remarkably low prices. They can give [illegible] satisfaction at all times.

[illegible] Barnes's [illegible] are the talk of the town. Go and try them.

Children and youths can have admission and use of skates Friday evening for 25 cents, at the Museum.

The next thing to a husband [illegible] Wheeler & Wilson sewing machine for joy and comfort in this life.

If you want to be well dressed wear a Warwick collar and have your boots blacked.

Ladies and their escorts will monopolize the skating on Wednesday evening.

[illegible] man's race at the Museum Saturday evening.

GROUND SQUIRRELS

The following article concerning those plagues of the farmer, the ground squirrels although written for the perusal of Californians who are perhaps, even more troubled by them than we will not be uninteresting to Oregonians. The habits of the squirrels in the two States are much the same and the means adopted in our sister State to destroy them will no doubt be as efficacious here.

As is pretty well understood, one of the most serious difficulties with which farmers and especially grain farmers have to contend with in this country is the little intermundane ground squirrel. In all parts of the State where cereals are raised this scourge abounds and causes no end of trouble and annoyance to the patient tillers of the soil. A large per centage of their laboring goes toward the support of the burrowing pests with whom increase [illegible] by what attacks [illegible] and whose numbers constantly multiply to diminish more and more perceptibly the annual harvests of grain. Much is already known about the California squirrel, but its increasing ravages are of such paramount importance to farmers as to render any information of the habits of these animals or any means for their destruction a matter of both interest and profit.

It is well known to those at all familiar with natural history that the gray ground squirrel of this coast is not to be classed under any distinct species or genus, but is intermediate between the true squirrel and the marmot. They possess to a certain extent the attributes of both and in the opinion of farmers, at any rate reflect no credit upon either. Like the marmot they burrow beneath the ground, while like the other branch of their progenitors they are spry of foot and light of limb. The most discouraging fact about these animals, that while they are exceedingly destructive they cannot be put to the slightest use. They are not considered good eating while anything else is to be obtained and their fur is of no value whatever. Under these circumstances it does not enhance their valuation to know that their power of fecundation is something marvelous.

Their average life is supposed to be about three years and as they breed five or six times per year with from three to six young per litter, it may be seen that the declension of the race will not be owing to any fault of their own. In fact their powers of propagation would seem to become infinite unless checked by others animals or by human ingenuity.

It has been estimated that their annual increase is six fold at which rate one pair would amount in five years, to 40,000 rodents.

In places where food is most plentiful these squirrels, of course multiply most, in which single respect, at least, they are not unlike other animals, or even the human family. Where opportunity is afforded them too they show very discriminating appetites. They will pick out the finest grains, and will feast themselves upon the daintiest of garden vegetables and fruits. Where nothing else can be obtained they will descend to pasturage where they feed upon the finer grasses and seeds. They invariably select the most nutritious food, and destroy the choicest of the farm products. They are provident too, and keep a good lookout for rainy days. Their underground houses are well stored with grain, and the worst aspect of this practice is that they never know when they have enough. In their method of procuring stores they display some very curious habits. For instance they will form a trail to a field of grain sometimes two or three miles distant, upon which they will daily pass to and fro throughout an entire season. Those who have studied their habits carefully say, also, that they will use the same thoroughfare for two or three seasons in succession. They are fond of burrowing on a hillside or in an orchard and in some places where they are very numerous and have pretty well undermined the ground the rains have been known to flow in and wash away portions of the ground—even uprooting and overturning trees.

There being no animals to take the part of the farmers versus the squirrels, it follows as a matter of necessity, that the farmers must fight for themselves. It is unnecessary to speak of the importance of destroying the pests while they abound only in moderate numbers, to prevent the serious damage that must otherwise certainly follow. Farmers and grain growers have been alive to this necessity for a long time past and have taxed their ingenuity considerably to ascertain the best manner of riddance. Traps and guns are so slow and uncertain as to be altogether out of the question. Fumigation has been tried, but the moist earth absorbs the poisonous gases, which also escape through other outlets, so as to render the process both tedious and unsatisfactory. Irrigation can seldom be practised as squirrels select raised ground for burrowing purposes. Phosphorus is sometimes used but it is difficult of manufacture and when distributed in the fields oftentimes becomes valueless through slow combustion. It is so inflammable, too, as frequently to have fired houses, fences and stacks of grain. In fact phosphorus though at times successful in accomplishing its object, has so many dangerous disadvantages that public opinion is decidedly in opposition to it. Even action has been tried in the legislature to prevent its use.

The use of strychnine meets with far more favor and has been tried with considerable efficacy. Here again, however, there are many drawbacks. It is quite costly and also difficult of manipulation. The farmers mix it with grain and strew it where the squirrels run. But the poison is so intensely bitter in its nature as to require much chemical skill to overcome the taste. Arsenic is too apt to be adulterated and is also insoluble to ordinary agents. Cyanide of Potassium is too volatile and its effects become dissipated by exposure to the air.

The principal drawbacks to the poisons are a lack of uniformity in their composition, the comparative expense, and the tendency of the grain when exposed to the ordinary influences favoring vegetation, to germinate.

MORE THAN ALL

BY J. G. WHITTIER

Give fools their gold and knaves their power,
Let fortune's bubbles rise and fall;
Who sows a field or trains a flower,
Or plants a tree, is more than all.

For he who blesses most is blest;
And God and man shall own his worth
Who toils to leave as a bequest
An added beauty to the earth.

And soon or late to all who sow
The time of harvest shall be given;
The flower shall bloom, the fruit shall grow,
If not on earth at last in heaven.

KISSING HANDS.

In Morocco the number "five" is never mentioned in the Sultan's presence because five is the number of the fingers of the hand, and the hand as the wielder of sceptre, sword and pen should be as the symbol of authority all the world over. This gives a meaning to the custom of saluting a ruler's hand by way of homage, and no courtly ceremony can boast a greater antiquity than that of kissing hands. [illegible] supplicating Achilles to restore the body of Hector, calls himself the most miserable of men in being forced to kneel before the murderer of his children and kiss the hand yet reeking with their blood. Roman soldiers kissed the hands of their generals, consuls, tribunes and dictators permitted a favored few to pay them the same mark of respect. Under the Emperors kissing the Imperial hand was held an essential duty on the part of courtiers of high and low, and taking a leaf out of the [illegible] book, it was too much their habit the bishops of the early Christian Church to give their hands to the lips of inferior ministers. The wearers of the triple crown were content with being honored in the same fashion until one of the Popes not caring to exhibit a mutilated hand substituted his foot and no one during to protest against the innovation his successors were careful not to resort to the less abject ceremony. It may be doubted if any Pope would have persuaded Cardinal John of Lorraine, to kiss his toe. When the Duchess of Savoy proffered her fair fingers to that haughty churchman, he declined the favor with disdain declaring he was accustomed to make free with the lips of the greatest Queen in the world and was not going to do less by a dirty little duchess—then seizing the astonished lady by the waist, the bold Cardinal spite of struggles and perturbations kissed her thrice upon the mouth. With equal disregard for etiquette but with more simplicity did the country dames to whom Charles II presented his hand put up their lips for the king to kiss, a breach of custom the merry monarch readily forgave—forgave we may be sure, with more sincerity than James I forgave Sir Henry Yelverton for speaking disrespectfully of his countryman when in token of pardon, he allowed the indiscreet orator to kiss his royal hand thrice ere he left the presence. Kissers at court are we believe forbidden to appear with their hands gloved. It was not always so, for in a letter dated 1625 we read "This day my Lord Coke with his gloves on touched and kissed the King's hand but whether to be confirmed a councillor or cashiered, I cannot yet learn." From kissing hands at court came kissing hands in courting, a practice the learned Selden considered as foolish as to cut the paring of an apple when one might taste the fruit itself, and from kissing hands for love came kissing hands for politeness' sake and the use of the phrase, "I kiss your hand," as a salutation upon leave taking without a thought of suiting the action to the word. A story is told of an old laird, who, being presented to George the Fourth at a levee, in his ignorance and anxiety to get through the business, ignored the hand extended to him and with a hasty bow, edged toward the door with all speed. Brought up by Lord Erroll's whispered reminder "Kiss hands! kiss hands!" the startled old gentleman facing about, kissed both his hands at the king, as if wafting a cordial recognition to a friend at a distance. All unconsciously the laird was acting according to ancient rule for only the greater subjects of the later Cæsars were permitted to press their lips upon imperial fingers. Inferior folks kissed their own hands as they were wont to do upon entering the temples of the gods, a custom Pliny set down among those which were followed for no reason but their antiquity.—All the Year Round.

THE HERO

"O for a knight like Bayard
With [illegible]
My light glove on his casque of steel
My love knot on his spear

Oh for the white plume floating
Sad Zutphen's field above—
The lion heart in battle
The woman's heart in love

Oh that man were once more manly
Woman's pride and not her scorn!
That once more the pale young mother
Dared to boast 'a man is born!'

But now life's slumbrous current
No sun-bowed cascade wakes
No tall heroic manhood
The level dullness breaks

O for a knight like Bayard
Without reproach or fear
My light glove on his casque of steel
My love knot on his spear

Then I felt my own heart throbbing
To the tune her proud heart beat
Life hath its regal natures yet,
True tender brave and sweet.

"Smile not, fair unbeliever—
One man at least I know,
Who might wear the crest of Bayard
Or Sidney's plume of snow.

"Once when over purple mountains
Died away the Grecian sun
And the far Cyllenian ranges
Paled and darkened one by one

"Fell the Turk a bolt of thunder
Cleaving all the quiet sky,
And against his sharp steel lightnings
Stood the Suliote but to die

"Woe for the weak and halting!
The Crescent blazed behind
A curving line of sabres
Like fire before the wind.

"Last to fly and first to rally,
Rode he of whom I speak,
When groaning in his bridal path
Sank down a wounded Greek—

"With the rich Albanian costume
Wet with many a ghastly stain
Gazing on earth and sky as one
Who might not gaze again

He looked forward to the mountains
Back on foes that never spare
Then flung him from his saddle
And placed the stranger there

Allah! hu! thro' flashing sabres,
Thro' a stormy hail of lead,
The good Thessalian charger
Up the slopes of olives sped.

Hot spurred the turbaned riders
He almost felt their breath
Where a mountain stream rolled darkly down
Between the hills of death

"One brave and manful struggle!
He gained the solid land,
And the cover of the mountains
And the carbines of his band."

"It was very great and noble,"
Said the moist eyed listener then
"But one brave deed makes no hero,
Tell me what he since hath been"

"Still a brave and generous manhood,
Still an honor without stain
In the prison of the Kaiser,
By the barricades of Seine

"And deem not helm and harness
Sole sign of valor true,
Peace hath higher tests of manhood
Than battle ever knew

"Wouldst know him now? Behold him
The Cadmus of the blind,
Giving the dumb lip language,
The idiot clay a mind

"Walking his round of duty
Serenely day by day,
With the strong man's hand of labor,
And childhood's heart of play,

"True as the knights of story,
Sir Launcelot and his peers
Brave in his calm endurance
As they in tilt of spears.

"As waves in stillest waters,
As stars in noonday skies
All that wakes to noble action
In his noon of calmness lies.

"Wherever outraged nature
Asks word or action brave
Wherever struggles labor
Wherever groans a slave,

"Wherever rise the peoples,
Wherever sinks a throne
The throbbing heart of Freedom finds
An answer in his own

Knight of a better era,
Without reproach or fear
Said I not well that Bayards
And Sidneys still are here?"

—John G Whittier

A CURIOUS ROMANCE

Norfolk street, Strand, says the London Court Journal, has a curious commemorative monument An observant spectator will notice that the first floor windows of a large house at the corner of Howard street present a peculiar appearance. The shutters are up, and they are covered thickly with dust, while through the chinks can be seen the blinds, also thick with dust, and moldering away with age Those shutters and blinds have been in exactly the same position, untouched, for about fifty years. During that time no human foot, it is believed, has entered that room And the reason is this Fifty years ago a certain nobleman was engaged to be married, the day was fixed, the wedding morning arrived, the breakfast was laid out in that spacious and handsome room, the bridegroom was ready to proceed to church, when it was discovered that the bride was missing a note in her handwriting was found addressed to the bridegroom, briefly informing him that she had eloped that morning with his 'best man,' a gay and gallant captain of dragoons. The jilted bridegroom did not say much, but he went alone to the room in which the wedding breakfast was laid out, with his own hands put up the shutters and drew the blinds, locked the door, and took the key. He gave orders that the door should be nailed up and barred with padlocked bars, and that no one should enter the room again. When the house was let it was stipulated that the room in question should remain untouched, and a sum of £200 per annum was paid to the tenant to compensate him for the deprivation of the use of the room The nobleman has been dead some years but it is believed the room has never been entered since he closed it, and there are the wedding meats moldering silently away and the ornaments crumbling into dust in the funeral gloom

A DIVORCE WITH A TERRIBLE ORIGIN —A New York letter to the Baltimore News says There is in this city however one most amusing low comedian who has a reason for never smiling In his youth he was the father of a little girl of a refractory obstinate disposition One day to punish her for something he locked her in the bedroom, and with his wife went down stairs to dinner. Soon the child began to scream in a terrible manner, which the parents considered was only temper but as the shrieks continued the wife became alarmed and desired to go to her He however forbade her doing so, as he said the child must be taught obedience and that she should not gain her end by screaming They went on with their dinner the fearful shrieks continuing for awhile and then ceasing As they were about leaving the table smoke began to pass through the house There was fire somewhere Rushing to release the poor little girl they found her dead Her clothes had evidently caught fire from the grate and while the parents were eating, the child was dying The comedian's wife took a horror and hatred of her husband after that as she believed that if he had allowed her to go to the poor infant she might have saved her life They were divorced No wonder that man never smiles off the stage

Sir Rutherford Alcock who has a minute and comprehensive knowledge of his subject is deeply impressed with the power and the permanent character of the Chinese empire Adopting the largest estimate of the population he justly holds that a community of 400 000 000 men under a single government and with the same language and institutions contains in itself a sufficient guarantee of vitality It is his deliberate opinion that Russia is more liable than China to permanent disruption

There is a great deal of sickness at Walla Walla at present We notice that four persons out of two families have died there in the past two weeks

We find in the Banker and Depositor for last month an article on the national banks of this country and we collate some interesting statistical information therefrom

During the past year 107 National Banks have been organized, with a paid up capital of $1[illegible] 104 000 and a circulation of $4 [illegible] 180 Five banks have failed with an aggregate capital of $[illegible] and thirty eight banks have gone into voluntary liquidation with capital of $[illegible] 000

The total number of banks organized under the national currency act is 2,207 Of these forty have failed and 1[illegible] have gone into voluntary liquidation without one dollar of loss to the bill holders, leaving in existence November 1 1875 2,092 banks with paid up capital and surplus of $[illegible] The circulation of these banks outstanding is $318 [illegible] 371 based upon $37[illegible] 700 United States gold bonds deposited with and held by the United States Treasurer for the redemption of their currency These bonds reduced to currency would amount to $422 165 788 or $103 815,379 more than the entire National Bank circulation This, added to the surplus fund created by the deduction of the ten per cent of net earnings for the protection of depositors makes 238,171 483 Besides this the stockholders are liable for double the amount of their capital stock in the event of failure

The aggregate amount of deposits in National Banks is $860,556 041 their aggregate loans amount to $981 491,435, secured by two or more names or collateral security They hold of United States bonds $28,087 150, of other bonds and stocks $33,505 045. Their banking houses and furniture are valued at $42 366 648 and there is due to them from other banks $141 695 797 and from the United States Treasurer $63 490 960 They have cash on hand $133,3[illegible]

The Produce Market.

In the Wheat trade there is nothing new to report exporters now having all their vessels loaded and some of them considerable lots on hand awaiting ships to arrive Though our press dispatches and general rumor report a little better feeling in the San Francisco market, that of Liverpool appears to be unchanged and dealers here have put $1 62½ as about their outside figures We have now no vessels foreign bound here to load the Cameo and Valparaiso having cleared and the Ophelia finished loading and will clear to morrow or next day The Prince Umberto at Astoria is nearly completed and will get off the berth this week There are four vessels under charter, to arrive from San Francisco two of them being en route We can learn of no vessels direct that are due

Flour is firm at a little, but the ample supply will prevent any present appreciation in rates Mill feed is still in good request and receipts light Oats are coming forward a little more freely and some important shipments to San Francisco are being made, the Ajax taking nearly 6,000 bushels. Our quotations give the range of prices and are freely paid. Apples and dried fruit are in fair request and trade active Provisions are firm and some heavy receipts of bacon and lard are noted Wool hides and peltry are not in large supply, and prices almost nominal. Other products unchanged The local trade in this line is improving generally

Shipping Intelligence.

The bark Cameo and ship Valparaiso have cleared with wheat cargoes for the European market.

The barkentine Portland with a full cargo of assorted merchandise arrived this morning and is discharging at Flanders' wharf

The steamship Ajax sailed for San Francisco at noon to day with a full freight list.

The steamship California which sailed for Sitka last Saturday, carried about 30,000 feet of lumber 65 bxs apples, 750 sks flour, 260 sks feed and a large quantity of miscellaneous merchandise

The ship Hannibal, under charter to load wheat is reported off the bar with a pilot on board

POND'S EXTRACT

"Hear, for I will speak of excellent things."

POND'S EXTRACT—The great Vegetable Pain Destroyer. Has been in use over thirty years, and for cleanliness and prompt curative virtues cannot be excelled

CHILDREN. No family can afford to be without Pond's Extract. Accidents, Bruises Contusions, Cuts, Sprains, are relieved almost instantly by external application Promptly relieves pains of Burns, Scalds, Excoriations, Chafings, Old Sores, Boils, Felons, Corns, etc Arrests inflammation reduces swellings, stops bleeding removes discoloration and heals rapidly

FEMALE WEAKNESSES. It always relieves pain in the back and loins, fullness and pressing pain in the head nausea vertigo

IN LEUCORRHŒA it has no equal All kinds of ulcerations to which ladies are subject are promptly cured Fuller details in book accompanying each bottle.

PILES—blind or bleeding—meet prompt relief and ready cure No case however chronic or obstinate can long resist its regular use

VARICOSE VEINS. It is the only sure cure.

KIDNEY DISEASES. It has no equal for permanent cure

BLEEDING from any cause. For this it is a specific. It has saved hundreds of lives when all other remedies failed to arrest bleeding from nose, stomach, lungs, and elsewhere

TOOTHACHE, Earache, Neuralgia and Rheumatism are all alike relieved, and often permanently cured

PHYSICIANS of all schools who are acquainted with Pond's Extract of Witch Hazel recommend it in their practice We have letters of commendation from hundreds of Physicians many of whom order it for use in their own practice In addition to the foregoing they order its use for Swellings of all kinds, Quinsy, Sore Throat, Inflamed Tonsils, simple and chronic Diarrhœa, Catarrh (for which it is a specific), Chilblains, Frosted Feet, Stings of Insects, Musquitoes, etc Chapped Hands, Face, and indeed all manner of [illegible]

THE HERO

"O for a knight like Bayard
Without reproach or fear
My light glove on his casque of steel
My love knot on his spear

"Oh for the white plume floating
Sad Zutphen's field above—
The lion's heart in battle
The woman's heart in love

Oh that man were once more manly
Woman's pride and not her scorn
That once more the pale young mother
Dared to boast 'a man is born'

[illegible] the slumbrous current [illegible] bowed cascade wakes
[illegible]
The level dullness breaks

"O for a knight like Bayard
Without reproach or fear
My light glove on his casque of steel
My love knot on his spear

Then I [illegible] own heart throbbing
To the tune her proud heart beat
Life hath its regal natures yet
True tender brave and sweet.

'Smile not fair unbeliever—
One man at least I know
Who might wear the crest of Bayard
Or Sidney's plume of snow

"Once when over purple mountains
Died away the Grecian sun
And the far Cyllenian ranges
Paled and darkened one by one

"Fell the Turk a bolt of thunder
Cleaving all the quiet sky
And against his sharp steel lightnings
Stood the Suliote but to die

"Woe for the weak and halting!
The Crescent blazed behind
A curving line of sabres
Like fire before the wind.

Last to fly and first to rally,
Rode he of whom I speak,
When groaning in his bridal path
Sank down a wounded Greek—

"With the rich Albanian costume
Wet with many a ghastly stain
Gazing on earth and sky as one
Who might not gaze again

"He looked forward to the mountains
Back on foes that never spare,
Then flung him from his saddle
And placed the stranger there

Allah! hu! thro flashing sabres
Thro a stormy hail of lead
The good Thessalian charger
Up the slopes of olives sped

"Hot spurred the turbaned riders
He almost felt their breath
Where a mountain stream rolled darkly down
Between the hills of death

"One brave and manful struggle'
He gained the solid land
And the cover of the mountains
And the carbines of his band

It was very great and noble,"
Said the moist eyed listener then
But one brave deed makes no hero
Tell me what he since hath been"

"Still a brave and generous manhood,
Still an honor without stain,
In the prison of the Kaiser,
By the barricades of Seine

And deem not bold and harness
Sole sign of valor true
Peace hath higher tests of manhood
Than battle ever knew

"Wouldst know him now? Behold him,
The Cadmus of the blind
Giving the dumb lip language,
The idiot clay a mind

Walking his round of duty
Serenely day by day,
With the strong man's hand of labor
And childhood's heart of play

"True as the knights of story
Sir Launcelot and his peers
Brave in his calm endurance
As they in tilt of spears.

"As waves in stillest waters
As stars in noonday skies
All that wakes to noble action
In his noon of calmness lies

"Wherever outraged nature
Asks word or action brave
Wherever struggles labor
Wherever groans a slave

"Wherever rise the peoples,
Wherever sinks a throne
The throbbing heart of Freedom finds
An answer in his own

"Knight of a better era,
Without reproach or fear
Said I not well that Bayards
And Sidneys still are here?

—John G Whittier

A CURIOUS ROMANCE

Norfolk street Strand says the London Court Journal has a curious commemorative monument An observant spectator will notice that the first floor windows of a large house at the corner of Howard street present a peculiar appearance. The shutters are up, and they are covered thickly with dust while through the chinks can be seen the blinds also thick with dust, and moldering away with age. Those shutters and blinds have been in exactly the same position, untouched, for about fifty years During that time no human foot, it is believed, has entered that room And the reason is this Fifty years ago a certain nobleman was engaged to be married, the day was fixed, the wedding morning arrived, the breakfast was laid out in that spacious and handsome room, the bridegroom was ready to proceed to church when it was discovered that the bride was missing a note in her handwriting was found addressed to the bridegroom, briefly informing him that she had eloped that morning with his best man, a gay and gallant captain of dragoons The jilted bridegroom did not say much but he went alone to the room in which the wedding breakfast was laid out with his own hands put up the shutters and drew the blinds locked the door and took the key He gave orders that the door should be nailed up and barred with padlocked bars and that no one should enter the room again When the house was let it was stipulated that the room in question should remain untouched and a sum of £200 per annum was paid to the tenant to compensate him for the deprivation of the use of the room The nobleman has been dead some years but it is believed the room has never been entered since he closed it, and there are the wedding meats moldering silently away and the ornaments crumbling into dust in the funeral gloom

A DIVORCE WITH A TERRIBLE ORIGIN —A New York letter to the Baltimore News says There is in this city however one man [illegible] ing low comedian who has a reason for never smiling In his youth he was the father of a little girl of a refractory obstinate disposition One day to punish her for something he locked her in the bedroom, and with his wife went down stairs to dinner Soon the child began to scream in a terrible manner which the parents considered was only temper but as the shrieks continued the wife became alarmed and desired to go to her He however forbade her doing so, as he said the child must be taught obedience and that she should not gain her end by screaming They went on with their dinner the fearful shrieks continuing for a while and then ceasing As they were about leaving the table smoke began to pass through the house There was fire somewhere Rushing to release the poor little girl they found her dead Her clothes had evidently caught fire from the grate and while the parents were eating the child was lying The comedian's wife took a horror and hatred of her husband after this as she believed that if he had allowed her to go to the poor infant she might have saved her life The [illegible] divorced Now we [illegible] that man never smiles [illegible] the stage

Sir Rutherford Alcock who is [illegible] and [illegible] his subject [illegible] is deeply impressed with the [illegible] permanent character of the [illegible] Adopting the largest estimate of the population [illegible] 400 000 000 [illegible] language [illegible] tains in itself a sufficient guarantee of [illegible] It is his deliberate opinion that [illegible] is more liable than [illegible] permanent disruption

We find in the [illegible] last month an article on the national banks of this country and we collate some interesting statistical information therefrom

During the past year 30 National Banks have been organized with a paid up capital of $1[illegible] 000 and a circulation of $1[illegible] Five banks have failed with an aggregate capital of $1[illegible] and thirty eight banks have [illegible] to voluntary liquidation with capital of $[illegible]

The total number [illegible] under the national currency act is 2[illegible] Of these forty have failed and [illegible] have gone into voluntary liquidation without one dollar of loss to the bill holders leaving in existence November 1 [illegible] banks with paid up capital and surplus of $[illegible] Their circulation of these banks outstanding is $[illegible] based upon $[illegible],320 700 United States gold bonds deposited with and held by the United States Treasurer for the redemption of their currency These bonds reduced to currency would amount to $12[illegible] or $[illegible] more than the entire National Bank circulation This added to the surplus fund created by the deduction of the ten per cent of net earnings for the protection of depositors makes 236 171 495 Besides this the stockholders are liable for double the amount of their capital stock in the event of failure

The aggregate amount of deposits in National Banks is $860 556 041 their aggregate loans amount to $984,491,455, secured by two or more names or collateral security They hold of United States bonds $28,087 150; of other bonds and stocks $33,[illegible] Their banking houses and furniture are valued at $42,366 648 and there is due to them from other banks $141,695 707 and from the United States Treasurer $68 495 960 They have cash on hand, $1[illegible],355 059

The Produce Market.

In the wheat trade there is nothing new to report, exporters now having all their vessels loaded and some of them considerable lots on hand awaiting ships to arrive Though our press dispatches and general rumor report a little better feeling in the San Francisco market, that of Liverpool appears to be unchanged and dealers here have put $1 62½ as about their outside figures We have now no vessels foreign bound here to load the Camoo and Valparaiso having cleared and the Ophelia finished loading and will charter tomorrow or next day The Prince Umberto at Astoria is nearly completed and will get off the berth this week There are four vessels under charter to arrive from San Francisco two of them being en route We can learn of no vessels direct that are due

Flour is firmer a little, but the ample supply will prevent any present appreciation in rates Mill feed is still in good request and receipts light Oats are coming forward a little more freely and some important shipments to San Francisco are being made the Ajax taking nearly 6 000 bushels Our quotations give the range of prices and are freely paid. Apples and dried fruit are in fair request and trade active Provisions are firm and some heavy receipts of bacon and lard are noted Wool hides and peltry are not in large supply and prices almost nominal. Other products unchanged The local trade in this line is improving generally

Shipping Intelligence.

The bark Camoo and ship Valparaiso have cleared with wheat cargoes for the European market.

The barkentine Portland with a full cargo of assorted merchandise arrived this morning and is discharging at Flanders' wharf

The steamship Ajax sailed for San Francisco at noon to day with a full freight list.

The steamship California which sailed for Sitka last Saturday, carried about 30 000 feet of lumber 65 bxs apples 750 sks flour, 260 sks feed and a large quantity of miscellaneous merchandise

The ship Hannibal under charter to load wheat is reported off the bar with a pilot on board

POND'S EXTRACT

"Hear, for I will speak of excellent things."

POND'S EXTRACT—The great Vegetable Pain Destroyer. Has been in use over thirty years, and for cleanliness and prompt curative virtues cannot be excelled

CHILDREN. No family can afford to be without Pond's Extract. Accidents, Bruises Contusions, Cuts, Sprains, are relieved almost instantly by external application Promptly relieves pains of Burns, Scalds, Excoriations, Chafings, Old Sores, Boils, Felons, Corns, etc Arrests inflammation reduces swellings stops bleeding, removes discoloration and heals rapidly

FEMALE WEAKNESSES. It always relieves pain in the back and loins, fullness and pressing pain in the head nausea vertigo

IN LEUCORRHEA it has no equal All kinds of ulcerations to which ladies are subject are promptly cured Fuller details in book accompanying each bottle

PILES—blind or bleeding—meet prompt relief and ready cure No case however chronic or obstinate, can long resist its regular use

VARICOSE VEINS. It is the only sure cure

KIDNEY DISEASES. It has no equal for permanent cure

BLEEDING from any cause. For this it is a specific. It has saved hundreds of lives when all other remedies failed to arrest bleeding from nose, stomach, lungs, and elsewhere

FOOTHACHE, Earache, Neuralgia and Rheumatism are all alike relieved, and often permanently cured

PHYSICIANS of all schools who are acquainted with Pond's Extract of Witch Hazel recommend it in their practice We have letters of commendation from hundreds of Physicians many of whom order it for use in their own practice In addition to the foregoing, they order its use for Swellings of all kinds, Quinsy, Sore Throat, Inflamed Tonsils, simple and chronic Diarrhea, Catarrh (for which it is a specific) Chilblains, Frosted Feet, Stings of Insects, Mosquitoes, etc Chapped Hands, Face, and indeed all manner of skin diseases

TOILET USE Removes Soreness, Roughness and Smarting; Heals Cuts, Eruptions and Pimples [illegible]

HENRY GRATTAN

In all Irish history and in all English [illegible] tory there is no nobler figure than that [illegible] Grattan. He has been compared to [illegible] Washington but the comparison [illegible] ble They were alike in their [illegible] their love of country in their [illegible] but George Washington was a greater [illegible] than Henry Grattan His oratory were as g[illegible] a power as military skill and it is not [illegible] there would be no presumption in the [illegible] parison The world has yet to [illegible] ample of saving a nation by talk [illegible] man as [illegible] is the deliverer [illegible] people But there is no need for [illegible] in order to discover the ineffable beauty [illegible] Grattan's character the sweet simplicity [illegible] his mind the unrivaled power of his orator[illegible] the perfect purity of his patriotism He po[illegible] sessed all the grandeur of his time and no[illegible] of its degradation He has come [illegible] out [illegible] of a troubled and lurid age without a spot up[illegible] his honor or a flaw in his reputation It [illegible] pleasant to feel that hyperbole can do him [illegible] wrong, and that in all the world there is n[illegible] one who dares to be his detractor Wheth[illegible] we regard his private life or his public labo[illegible] the obstacles in his way or the manner [illegible] which he overcame them, there is nothing [illegible] goodness courage devotion denial Hen[illegible] Grattan is the one man of whom Ireland m[illegible] be unequivocally proud

The first subject that attracted his attenti[illegible] was the condition of trade in Ireland [illegible] that time England possessed the power u[illegible] der the law called Poynings of putting [illegible] veto on all Irish legislation. Irish trade in[illegible] fered with English enterprise, and England p[illegible] hibited all export of cattle to England Irela[illegible] traded with America —then a colony—En[illegible] land prohibited trade with the colonies I[illegible] land opened a foreign trade England proh[illegible] ited foreign trade The cattle trade killed [illegible] Irish began to make woolen stuffs M[illegible] Froude pithily tells the story In The E[illegible] lish in Ireland he describes the English ru[illegible] saying to the Irish serf You shall not wea[illegible] your wool at home you shall not sell y[illegible] woolen cloth either here or abroad we w[illegible] put you under such disadvantages that it sh[illegible] not be worth your while to supply your o[illegible] necessities you shall buy our cloth and fr[illegible] to clothe your own backs you shall sell [illegible] fleeces to us and as it is our interest to b[illegible] them on easy terms you shall take what[illegible] price we are pleased to offer Ireland wa[illegible] this condition when Henry Grattan ente[illegible] the House of Commons in 1775 In five ye[illegible] he had won free trade and was on the [illegible] road to legislative independence The [illegible] spent on the original design served to [illegible] within grasp the greater object As long [illegible] Poyning's law ruled in Ireland Ireland no[illegible] be a province It was then that the [illegible] cent struggle of George Washington gave [illegible] Henry Grattan the moral and physical pow[illegible] which won the triumph England was at w[illegible] with France was at war with America [illegible] as Lord Chatham showed at war with hers[illegible] Grattan saw the hour He was the man [illegible] summoned the volunteers to arms and 10[illegible] 000 men obeyed his call In the ranks w[illegible] and peers and peasants Catholics and Pr[illegible] testants men of every grade and every pol[illegible] cal proclivity They told the King that th[illegible] were ready to defend the country against [illegible] foreign foe which he was not and they [illegible] manded the freedom of a capable people [illegible] On the 10th of April, 1782 the royal decr[illegible] announced the legislative independence [illegible] Ireland The scene in the metropolis was o[illegible] of unusual splendor. The Houses of Parl[illegible] ment, now the Bank of Ireland are the p[illegible] fection of architectural beauty The stre[illegible] were lined with the volunteers arrayed [illegible] full military costume. That pageant of a c[illegible] tizen army was not more beautiful than t[illegible] array of loveliness which had assembled [illegible] hear the glad news and cheer the leaders [illegible] the emancipated Flood and Yelverto[illegible] Hutchinson and John Philpot Curran we[illegible] in their places. The Peers gallery was abla[illegible] with stars The college students sat in the[illegible] places of privilege and of honor arrayed [illegible] velvet and the academic costume of the tim[illegible] It was then in the proudest moment of [illegible] life, in the flush of manly grace and class[illegible] beauty, that Henry Grattan rose to move t[illegible] Declaration of Independence Shall I repe[illegible] words which have become familiar and are y[illegible] immortal which have amazed and delighte[illegible] purified and elevated mankind There w[illegible] yet to come a day when that chamber wou[illegible] see another scene when even the voice [illegible] Grattan would plead in vain and his vo[illegible] fall on blighted hearts As he stood now [illegible] was the strongest man in the Kingdom [illegible] ruled Ireland without dispute He had [illegible] feated a King [illegible] nation and despoiled [illegible] minister He had achieved a triumph whi[illegible] Brougham ranked at the head of all t[illegible] umphs won by patriots in modern time[illegible] And all this he had done ere he was 36 So[illegible] there came the first sign of storm —the assum[illegible] tion of the volunteers to dictate to the leg[illegible] lature To this Grattan opposed himself wi[illegible] all his might He had already offended [illegible] by refusing office He had offended the Kin[illegible] by declining a palace in Phoenix Park [illegible] had offended Parliament in that he declin[illegible] its allowance by one half And now he w[illegible] face to face with a physical force which threa[illegible] ened to overawe liberty It was a time [illegible] blunders He quarreled with Flood who[illegible] powers were hardly inferior to his own [illegible] was an older man than Grattan and may h[illegible] was jealous of the distinction which his [illegible] dain pupil had attained Grattan was satisf[illegible] with the Declaration of Independence [illegible] demanded the formal yet absolute [illegible] ment of the English right [illegible] land

From out this apparent triviality there a[illegible] a passage of mutual recrimination which [illegible] no parallel in history [illegible] was fearful and [illegible] Ireland Mr [illegible] which he would make a [illegible] He began to [illegible] The House of Commons [illegible] was still a purely Protestant assembly [illegible] Catholics were [illegible] of the members were [illegible] the crown [illegible] were seats for sale Then came the [illegible] bellion of [illegible] government and [illegible] and to prove the necessity of [illegible] no stand at [illegible] drew from [illegible] port [illegible] consent [illegible] heard of the appalling [illegible] and of the measures of [illegible] to quote the words [illegible] itself forbid [illegible] Still he had [illegible] far in the [illegible] It was hard to [illegible] members there would [illegible] sell their country But [illegible] and not more [illegible] twenty [illegible] vanced [illegible] ships [illegible] were [illegible] of pounds [illegible] was not [illegible] you have [illegible] the Fr[illegible] mined [illegible] Parliament [illegible] begun by [illegible] Rosse The [illegible] were [illegible] The Peers [illegible] were in their [illegible] were in [illegible] Burke and [illegible] dered against [illegible] and Arthur M[illegible] Irish orators [illegible] streets were filled [illegible] the fate of their [illegible]

And as [illegible] mighty [illegible] lators within [illegible] Grattan was borne to the [illegible] ter That day he had been [illegible]
